

The Sustain CONFERENCE originated from the needs to provide an inter-disciplinary forum where the most serious problems affecting a sustainable future for human security can be discussed, in recognition of the fact that many future problems cannot be discussed and solved by a "siloed" approach. The past six conferences have attracted more than 600 participants who consist of researchers, students and scholars in more than 26 countries around the globe.

This conference calls for international researchers, students, industrial and business sectors, government officers, practitioners, public and private communities to discuss, share and exchange their latest research and experience progresses in relation with sustainable future problems related to the following topics:
